ISO9001:2015 and ISO14001:2015 MANAGEMENT SYSTEM STANDARDS

INTRODUCTION and SCOPE

Context of the organisation

Counterplas was formed in 1980 as a specialist printing and plastics fabrication firm. In 2004 Counterplas was acquired by its current owners and re-located to its present home in the West Midlands. The company invested heavily in the injection moulding side of the business and this proved to be the catalyst for the controlled business expansion with an ever expanding customer base, commitment to continuous improvement, the implementation of lean manufacturing and investment in energy efficient plant and equipment, have all helped provide the stable financial base for the company's continued success.

Our integrated management system has been designed and developed through the requirements of the quality and environmental standards to deliver the scope outlined below. Our primary aim is to have a profitable organisation delivering products and services to enhance customer satisfaction. We also need to aim to meet and recognise all applicable statutory and regulatory requirements associated within our industry sector. The context of the organisation has identified the internal and external factors that can impact the strategic objectives of the company. Risks, opportunities and interested parties associated to our company have been identified to control our products and services and our authority and ability to exercise control and influence.

The management system includes text working practices and all required documented information. Flow charts are in place to describe key processes performed within the Company's' activities and also has a cross functional multi-disciplinary approach. Flow Charts and the interaction of processes can be seen in section 7, System Process Flows and Procedures.

Scope of the organisation:

Injection Moulding, Assembly and Printing of products

8.3 Design and Development of products and services is outside the boundaries of this system and therefore is not applicable.
